

Learning is increasingly coming to be seen as a logical, sequential, planned activity. But it isn't, is it? Learning often takes us unawares - an insight triggered by some chance happenstance enables us to make sense of what earlier had seemed incomprehensible.